

To Whom It May Concern:

It has come to my attention that the FCC is currently reviewing how radio and television stations need to be more actively involved in their community.

If that was all you were after, I would not necessarily oppose this. But you seem to want local programming for the sake of it being local. A national program can and does meet the needs of a local community. Furthermore, I don't want my Christian radio station be forced to air a value or philosophy they (or I) don't agree with. No view is being squelched here. I would imagine if you want that opposing point of view, you would be able to surf the dial to find it. I would also imagine they would not want MY viewpoint on their station either. But that's ok!

If you want to do this, be honest about it. This is about CONTROL, not freedom of speech. Do you honestly think you're fooling the public? Actually, sad to say, you probably think you are, and even sadder, you're probably right. Which of course, by the way, makes you even more reprehensible.

Do the right thing. LET THIS GO!
